Audit Division Recommendation Memorandum on McCain-Palin 2008,

Inc. and McCain-Palin Compliance Fund, Inc.

Pursuant to Commission Directive No. 70 (FEC Directive on Processing Audit Reports), the Audit staff presents its recommendation(s) below and discusses the finding(s) in the attached Draft Final Audit Report. The Office of General Counsel has reviewed this memorandum and concurs with the recommendation(s).

Proposed Finding on Campaign Travel Billing for Press

In response to the Preliminary Audit Report and the Draft Final Audit Report, McCain-Palin 2008, Inc. (the General Committee) stated that the excess Press reimbursement collected in the general period for travel was a misallocation of billing proceeds, requiring a transfer to John McCain 2008, Inc. (the Primary Committee). The General Committee stated it used a reasonable process for Press billing between the primary and general campaigns that was consistent with Commission precedent as well as Generally Accepted Accounting Principles (GAAP).

At the audit hearing held on August 23, 2012, the General Committee representatives made the following points to support that the billing method utilized by the campaign was reasonable and did not necessitate the need to refund the Press.

> The General Committee explained there was no overbilling of Press if the entire contractual period covering the entire campaign were considered. It - was stated that the structure of the Swift Air contract at issue was not unusual when compared with previous campaigns.

- The General Committee acknowledged that a misallocation of Press reimbursements collected in the general period may have resulted due to the unanticipated travel requirements during the campaign.
- The General Committee noted it used the same contract structure and calculations it used in past presidential elections and was not previously informed that the methodology could be considered unreasonable by the Commission.
- The General Committee explained that the regulations only require a reasonable method to determine the pro rata share of costs related to travel and the General Committee stated it did all it could to use a reasonable method. The General Committee assected that the regulations do not allow substitution of the Audit staff's calculation for the General Committee's calculation unless the Commission can prove its methodology was unreasonable or adopted in bad faith.
- The General Committee explained that they were aware of an imbalance and intended on making the transfer to the Primary Committee. The transfer was not made because they were awaiting further instruction as a result of the audit.
- The General Committee explained that there was no overall harm to the traveling Press for the entire campaign period.
- The General Committee recommended that the Commission should take no further action with regard to this matter. However, the General Committee would be amenable should the Commission mandate that the General Committee go back and "square-up" the accounts by transferring $344,892 to the Primary Committee.

The Audit staff offers the following for the Commission to consider with respect to this matter.

First, the focus of the audit was the General Committee and the travel that took place during the general period. The Prhnary and General Committees are two separate entities, the latter being publicly funded. The bright line as laid out at 11 CFR §9034.4(e)(7) distinguishes between primary and general travel expenses. This regulation defines travel occurring on or before the date of the candidate's nomination as a primary election expense.

Second, a review of work papers from past presidential audits found key differences between the previous campaigns and the General Committee's calculation method and contract. The Audit staff notes Press was billed for weekly llights within an average of 12 days; the vast majority (approximately 80%) of the billings occurring prior to the end of the campaign.

Third, the Audit staff's review of the travel in the primary and general periods indicated, that contrary to the General Committee's contention, there were Press organizations that flew with the campaign only during either the primary or general periods. This leaves open the possibility that some Press organizations may have subsidized the General Committee as a result of its billing method.

Finally, the Audit staff believes the issue is not the reasonableness of the method, but the impermissible result. The General Committee believes the billing amounted to nething more than an imbalance in collections from Press between the primary and general periods which could easily be resolved, if required, by a transfer to the Primary Committee. The Audit staff maintains the General Committee's billing calculations resulted in collecting more than was allowable for the general period which was the subject of the audit. As a result, the regulations prescribe that the over collection be refunded pro rata to the Press representatives.

Although the factors outlined by the Audit staff above support its methodology as appropriately applied to the general period, in consultation with the Office of General Counsel, it was concluded that further consideration should be given to different billing methods. It was determined that while the General Committee and the Audit Division may have had different methods for calculating the billing to the Press, it appears no material harm was caused by the General Committee's method in terms of 1) the Press materially subsidizing the campaign, 2) the General Committee exceeding the expenditure limitation, or 3) the Primary Committee financing the General Committee.

According to the General Committee, the billing imbalance between the primary and the general for press travel resulted from the inherent complexity created by having a single air charter contract that spanned the primary and general election periods. Lacking prior guidance, the Genmul Committee ohose an acommling methed for the calculation of travel costs that evolved over time. This evolution of their methodology continued with the Audit staff belief that the assignment of cost for air charters, even in the case of a single contract over two periods, need not be burdensome or confusing. Only those costs, paid in the respective election period, should be applicable to the calculation of amounts attributable to and billable to the traveling press in the same election period. In instances where a credit originating from the prior period is applied in a latter period, a corrective adjustment may be required. However, in view of the fact that the regulations do not specify a particular methodology and only require that no more than 110 percent be collected for roimbursed travel, the Audit staff concedes that General Committee may have amployed what it bodieved to be a reasonable methodelogy. See 11 C.F.R. § 9004.6(b). It follows that the reimbursements collected may not have exceeded the allowable limit.

The Audit staff recommends that the Commission find the method of billing the Press during the campaign did not result in material harm.

Proposed Finding on Failure to File 48-Hour Notices

In response to both the Prelimitary Audit Report and the Draft Final Audit Report, the McCuht-Palin Compliance Fund, Inc. stated the failure to file 48-hour notices was due to an outside vendor's error. During the audit hearing, the McCain-Palin Compliance Fund, Inc. stated there was no factual dispute with the Audit staff and that the outside vendor miscoded the contributions. Therefore, the contributions were not included in the 48-hour reports filed by the McCain-Palin Compliance Fund, Inc. The McCain-Palin Compliance Fund, Inc. requested the Commission take no further action on this matter.

The Audit staff recommends that the Commission find that McCain-Palin Compliance Fund, Inc. failed to file 48-hour notices for contributions totaling $240,700 that were received prior to the general election.

If this memorandum is approved, a Proposed Final Audit Report will be prepared within 30 days of the Commission's vote.

In case of an objection, Directive No. 70 states that the Audit Division Recommendation Memorandum will be placed on the next regularly scheduled open session agenda.

Campaign Travel Billing for Press

The General Committee received reimbursements totaling $344,892 from the Press for campaign travel, which was above the maximum amount billable to the Press. The Commission's regulations provide that a 10 percent markup on the actual cost of transportation and services may be billed to the Press. The General Committee stated that the excess reimbursement from the Press for travel was a sallocation of billing proceeds, requiring the General Committee to pay John Markup 2008, Inc. (the Primary Committee) for the excess funds collected.

In response to the Preliminary Audit Report, the General Committee in stained that it used a reasonable process for the allocation of Pass reimbursements between committees that is consistent with Commission predent as well as General Accounting Principles (GAAP). The General Commission are as explained itself. tee so explained its contention and during the term of the that any apparent excess of Press reimbursements colle contract could be corrected by makin payment to the Navary Committee. The General Committee requested that the Committee to the Primary Committee Commission does not permit the transfer, the Ge emmittee requests that it be allowed to disgorge the excessive Press reil by sements the U.S. Treasury. The the Commission should find that the Press General Committee be eves orrectly culated resulting in no violation of the Act, and that the reimbursements wer General Committée ma ermin e immediately For more detail, see p. 6.)

Part IV Finding and Recommendation for the General Committee

Summary

The General Committee received reimbursements totaling $344,892 from the Press for campaign travel, which was above the maximum amount billable to the Press. The Commission's regulations provide that a 10 percent morium travel actual cost of transportation and services may be billed to the Press. The General Committee stated that the excess reimbursement from the Press for travel was a missal station of billing proceeds, requiring the General Committee to pay Lan Accain 2006, a.c. (the Primary Committee) for the excess funds collected.

In response to the Preliminary Audit Report, the G mmittee maintained that it used a reasonable process for the allocation of Press N oursements between the two committees that is consistent with Commission precedency well as Generally Accepted Accounting Principles (GAAP). The Committee as explained its contention that any apparent excess of Press reimer seem collected doing the term of the contract could be corrected by making a hymen Primary Committee. The General Committee requested that the Commission personal transfer from the General Committee to the Prime, so in the event that the Commission does not bermit the transfer, the General Committee requests that it be allowed to disgorge the accessive Press reimburgements to the U.S. Treasury. The Commission should find that the Press General Committee believe th fulting in no violation of the Act, and that the e correc calculate term. immediately. General Smmitts

Facts and Analysis

A. Facts

In 2008, the Press covering the campaign of the Presidential candidate (John McCain) and the Vice Presidential candidate (Sarah Palin) travelled predominately on two aircraft chartered by the campaign. The aircraft for the Presidential candidate was the same aircraft used by John McCaln 2008, Inc. (the Primary Committee and was chartered through Swift Air, LLC (Swift Air). The aircraft for the Vice Pasidential candidate was chartered through JetBlue Airways Corporation shortly before a Republican National Convention. The Press also occasionally travelled on aircraft elimetred by the General Committee through CSI Aviation Services (CSI) and the gound transportation throughout the campaign.

As cited above, the amount of reimbursement so, but from bedia personnel sall not exceed 110 percent of the media representative's program at a mark (or a reasonable estimate of the media representative's program share) of the access cost of transportation and services made available. Any reimbultament received in the sess of this amount shall be returned to the media representative. It is $9004.6(b) and $100).

The General Committee contends that it del not new a Pressuravel reimbursement above the 110 percent allowed by the regulations. The General committee calculated total transportation costs for the Present obe $4,50,658, equating 106 percent of the cost calculated by the General Committee. The General Committee actually received $4,476,728 from the Present as regularizement for ravel.

During field the Audit of Calculates that the General Committee received Press travel in Libursement access the 110 percent allowed by the regulations. The Audit staff and lated the total partial attraction cost for the Press to be $3,756,215 and a maximum amount billable at the Press (110 percent of cost) of $4,131,836. Based on the Audit states calculation of transportation costs, the General Committee is required to refund to the Press $344,89 ($4,476,728 - $4,131,836).

The main difference ween the General Committee's figure and the Audit staff's figure is the calculation for cotal transportation costs. The General Committee disagreed with the Audit staff's cost calculation methods with respect to charter flights associated with the aircraft used by the Presidential candidate. The General Committee also did not agree with the Audit staff's initial application of aircraft reconfiguration costs.

The General Committee billed at 106 percent, but was able to document administrative costs to allow billing up to 110 percent for all modes of transportation. In determining the amount billable to the Press, the Audit staff credited the General Committee for any under hilling of the Press associated with any one aircraft or mode of transportation. In other words, any under billing of the Press for travel on the aircraft for the Vice Presidential candidate, CSI chartered aircraft, and ground transportation was applied to any overbilling of the Press that may have occurred for travel on the Presidential aircraft.

The Audit staff calculated transportation costs based on actual hours used only by the General Committee during the general campaign. The General Committee, in contrast, calculated transportation costs based on the life of the charter contract, which covered both the primary and general campaign periods.

Applying Cost on Aircraft for Presidential Candidate

The Primary Committee and the General Committee chartered a Boeing 737-400 from Swift Air for use by the Presidential candidate. The Swift Air contract covered the period from June 30, 2008 through November 15, 2008. The contract stipulated payments totaling $6,384,000 to be paid in 19 weekly installments of $336,000. The contract covered nine weeks for the Primary Committee and ten weeks for the General Committee. The contract also required the General Committee et Primary Committee to pay costs for fuel, catering, passenger taxes, and graind having fees. There was also an aircraft recenfiguration cost of $650,000 that was paid in the by the Primary Committee. The General Committee correctly reimburss the Primary Committee $390,000 ($650,000 less 40 percent depreciation) for the entranglement of the primary costs.

The contract allowed 22.4 flight hours per week or a total of 425.6 flight cours for the life of the contract. If the full flight hours per we have a flown, the hour rolled over to subsequent week(s). If the contracted 22.4 flight courser week were exceeded and no accumulated unused hours were available, there was a charge of $15,000 per additional hour. Neither the Primary of General Commission ever exceeded the 22.4 flight hours in a week. The General Commission ever exceeded the 22.4 flight hours in a week. The General Commission ever exceeded the Primary Committee used 111.8 flight hours during the second.

The General Committee passets first week unstallmen payment of $336,000 on August 29, 2008, and made to payments of $4,047,402 to Swift Air. This amount included charges for the caterial, passenger taxes, and ground handling fees.

For the first week of the case again, the case of the contract (planar) to general and divided it by the remaining number of hours available under the contract, instating until hours paid for by the Primary Committee. Later weeks three calculated users the about yet to be paid on the contract and dividing it by the estimated flight hours to the about yet to be paid on the contract and dividing it by the estimated flight hours to the about yet to be paid on the contract and dividing it by the estimated flight hours to the would be used in the future, based on weekly avarages. The calculated included reconfiguration costs. This method caused a fluctuation of the hourly charter as calculated from as low as $11,569 to as high as $39,715. Using this rate, the segment is the way calculated and divided by the number of passengers.

The Audit staff calculated the charter rate per flight hour for Swift Air by taking the contract weekly installment ($336,000) and dividing that by the actual weekly hours flown. The costs of fuel, catering, passenger taxes, ground handling, and certain reconfiguration costs were then added to determine the total segment cost. The cost per passenger was then calculated by dividing the total segment cost by the total number of passengers on the segment.

Applying Reconfiguration Costs

The Audit staff and the General Committee did not initially agree on the amount of aircraft reconfiguration costs billable to the Press. Historically, the Commission has allowed the Press to be billed only for the aircraft reconfiguration costs that could reasonably considered as having benefited the Press. The General Committee believes all coats for reconfiguring an aircraft at the beginning and at the end of the campaign should be considered when calculating the billable amount for the Press. The General Committee also stated that pert of the nircraft reconfiguration cost was to bring the aircraft into compliance with Federal Aviation Administration safety standards that ultimately benefited the safety of all passengers including the Press.

B. Preliminary Audit Report & Audit Division Recommendation

The issue of press travel reimbursement was presented at the exit conference. In response, the General Committee submitted the following points for the Commission's consideration.

Cost Calculation

The General Committee made a comparison between the Santair contract, which spanned both the primary and general election periods, and similar ircraft contracts that were analyzed during previous presidential audits: Dog-Remp in Not. Bush-Cheney in 2000, and Kerry-Edwards in 2004. The General Committee specifically referenced the Audit staff's calculation of the hourly rate for each aircraft from the 1996. Le-Kemp audit, which accumulated all operating costs and retided the total by the accumulater of hours flown by each aircraft. By applying the santacalculation to the entire amount of the Swift Air contract ($6,384,000 divided by 252.1 hour flown), the General Committee contends that its cost calculations use the billing the Presence accurate.

The Audit staff agrees that if the General Coile and was using the total Swift Air contract amount for both, the primary and ceneral contract amount for both, the primary and ceneral contract amount for both, the primary and ceneral coursement from the Press that exceeded the maximum allows by the regulations. However, as in Dole-Kemp only those costs attributed to the Greenal Committee should be used in determining the travel cost that the General Committee may bill to the Press. This conclusion is consistent with travel costs believed may bill to the Press. This conclusion is consistent with travel costs believed presidential audits and is supported by 11 CFR §903 May Committee to be a part, that expenditures for campaign-related transportation shall be a sibuted coording to when the travel occurs. As in Dole-Kemp, the Assistant used only at general section operating cost ($4,047,402) and the actual weekly human flown by the general committee when calculating the billable cost to the Press. This common appropriate method when calculating costs and billing for campaign travel wing the general election period.

The General Committee provided a spreadsheet that spanned the primary and general election periods and relied on adjusting the per-hour billing rates on a segment-by-segment basis due to using fewer flight hours than available in the Swift Air contract. The General Committee made the spreadsheet available to demonstrate that the Primary and General Committees' billing allocation was based on total costs ($6,354,859) that were lower than the contract amount ($6,384,000). The General Committee pontends that no overbilling of the Press could have occurred since the difference ($29,141) was never billed in the Press by the Primary committee during week eight. However, it appears that the General Committee did bill this difference to the Press³. Therefore, the

During the second week of the general campaign, the General Committee calculated Press billing by using the total cost of the contract ($6,384,000) and subtracting the amount of the contract already billed ($2,140,752) to arrive at the remaining balance of the contract. The helicopter cost ($29,141) was included

General Committee included the total contract amount in calculating the billing allocation.

The Audit staff used the weekly $336,000 installment divided by the actual hours flown weekly during the general election period for billing calculations (plus the fuel, catering, taxes, and ground handling fees). The General Committee explained that the Audit staff's calculations had the benefit of hindsight because, due to the fast pace of the election campaign, the actual flying hours were unknown at the time of billing. Therefore, estimates of pro rata share had to be used in order to be in compliance with the regulations to bill media representatives within 60 days of travel. The General Committee believes that the Audit staff's methodology would be in conflict with 11 CFR §9004.6(b)(3), which says, in pur, that media representatives should be given a bill that specifies amounts charged for air and ground for each segment.

The Audit staff's methodology does not conflict with 11 TR §9.1.6(b)(3), given that the actual flight hours are known soon after flights occur and thereby all within the required 60 days to provide the Press with an itemized bill that specifies the amounts charged for air transportation for each segment with trip. It appears the control week, allowing time to use the actual flight hours for the large the billable travel costs known at the time of billing also could have been added to determine the cost per passenger. This method would incorplicate adjusting for largely flight hours.

The General Committee also referenced be 200 much. Chene audit and explained that it used the same hilling methodology and personnel and it, which did not include an adverse audit finding an informal addition the rudit staff suggesting that a correction to the according in a lods was necessary. The Audit staff acknowledges that the same billing methodology will used in 200 Bush-Cheney; however, the amount of the overbilling of the Press was not material. Furthermore, there is no indication that the 2000 Bush-Cheney General Committee and the Bush Primary Committee and the Salation of travel costs.

General Acousted Accepting Prociples (GAAP)

The Gene — Committee elegained several accounting principles and standards onder GAAP to support its methodology for billing the Press. The General Committee believes that the Audit set fidd not oply the appropriate accounting basis in its analysis. Specifically, the Capral Committee believes that the Audit staff incorrectly applied a cash-basis of accounting instead of an accrual-basis in its analysis of Press billing. Under cash-basis accounting, revenue is recorded when cash is received and an expense is recorded when cash is paid. In accrual-basis accounting, revenue is recognized when it is earned (or when services are performed) and expenses are recognized when they are incurred. The General Committee contains that under accrual-basis accounting, the objective is to ensure that events that change air entity's financial statements are recorded in the periods in which the events occur, rather than only in the periods during which the entity receives or pays cash. The General Committee also contends that the matching principle under GAAP dictates that expenses are recognized when the revenue is recognized, and therefore that the entire cost of the contract should be used when calculating billing for travel.

The Audit staff agrees that the matching principle dictates that expenses be recognized when the revenue is recognized. In turn, the revenue recognition principle recognizes revenue in the period in which it is earned. Since the period and activity audited was the general election period, the Audit staff correctly applied the $4,047,402 cost for the general election portion of the Swift Air contract and related expenses.

The issue is not whether the cash or accrual-basis of accounting is applied to the transportation costs and revenue generated from billing the Press question of the matching principle under GAAP. At issue is that the activity of a separate reporting and corporate entity (the Primary Compiles should be recognized by the General Committee and by this audit. An underlying sump Lin GAAP is that every entity is separate and, therefore, the revenues are expenses of sh entity should be recognized as such. As previously noted, recognizing the activity of the separately is further supported by 11 CFR §903 4(e)(7), which states in expenditures for campaign-related transportation all be an ibuted according to when the travel occurs. Therefore, the General Committee or a recognize only those transportation costs from September 1, 2008, through Newmber 4, 2008, in the calculation for billing the Press.

Reconfiguration

The General Committee believes that airclaft reconstant costs are a part of placing the asset in service and that the reconfiguration costs we included in the value of the asset when it was pure ased have the Primary Committee. Therefore, the General Committee contends but all reconfiguration costs could be billed to the Press pro rata since the Press used the asset.

ce and after discussions with the Audit staff, the General * Confe recon bution costs incurred, with the exception of decals and Committee stated that anvis that benefited of camp staff, such as divider-curtain expenses, should be he billable amount. After considering the General Committee's response, the included ... sed its calculation of aircraft reconfiguration costs billable to the Press. The Audit staff al not include costs for painting and applying logos totaling $161,386 or the cost for a divide current totaling $1,167 in the calculation for billable reconfiguration costs since the General committee indicated that these items benefited only the campaign. As a result, the Audit staff calculated $487,447 ($650,000 - $161,386 -$1,167) in reconfiguration costs billable to all travelers for both the primary and general periods. After subtracting 60 percent of the accepted reconfiguration cost because the asset was purchased from the Primary Coromittee, the Audit staff calculated $292,468 ($487,447 x 60%) of aircraft reconfiguration costs as billable during the general period. The Audit staff divided this amount by the total 140.3 flight hours flown by the General Committee to determine the amount of aircraft reconfiguration costs attributed to each segment.

Other Considerations

The General Cummittee stated that the Audit staff and the Commission have allowed for transfers and repayments between primary and general election presidential committees with respect to other types of vendors. The General Committee believes that any excess funds from the Press for travel are no different than deposits related to other vendors such as those for telephone contracts, media placement refunds, or lease agreements, for which repayments sometimes are necessary to ensure that a primary committee does not subsidize a general committee.

The General Committee also contends that it would not be reasonable to force campaigns to renegotiate and redraft every legal contract that exists to separate primary and general activity. To refund the Press would involve more than 700 smallate hilling transactions and it would "go against many of the internal ethics policies of the various news organizations...who are not allowed to receive passage at liscounded rates on campaign transportation so as to not unduly influence their coverage of the case plates."

The Audit staff acknowledges the administrative purden that may be involved with refunding the Press. Historically, the Commission has allowed refunds to the Press to be made on a pro rata basis, such as in the 1996 Dole-New audit, rather than recalculating each billing to the Press. The General Committee's allowative suggestion, refunding the Primary Committee, would be considered a non-qualified empaign expense subject to repayment. The regulations state titat and a subject to considered expenses because these expenses are no applications of the general election. 11 CFR §9002.11(a).

The General Committee receive reimbursements from the Press for campaign travel that were above the manner of amount at whilest that Press. The Primary Committee appears to have billed an amount at whilest than its cont. The Primary and General Committee each paid its share of the contact and billed the Press and Secret Service accordingly. Although the region of the contact and be billed, there is no requirement that any billing to made. The travel huld be provided at no cost.

The General Committee is a prectanat there are transactions between the Primary and General Conscittees in many Presidential campaigns in which either the primary or general election publicly unded. Assets, ranging from office equipment to service deposits to, as in a case aircraft configuration, often are purchased. In each case, value is transferred between the two committees. For example, if the General Committee purchases security deposits, it gives cash for the right to continue the service and recover the deposit after the campaign. No such exchange is involved in the proposed transfer to the Frimary Committee In this case.

The General Committee does not dispute that it received more raimbursements from the Press during the general election period, but the General Committee believes a more appropriate term is misallocation of Press travel reirebursement received between the General Committee and the Primary Committee. The General Committee's methodology may accurately reflect the comparative actual use of the aircraft between the Primary (111.8 flight hours) and General Committees (140.3 flight hours), but it does not reflect the comparative actual costs paid by each committee. The General Committee did not exceed the overall expenditure limitation, even with the excessive Press reimbursements. However, the purpose is to match the cost of the campaign to the proper election and spending limit. For these reasons and those noted above, the reimbursements totaling $344,892 that the General Committee received from the press were above the maximum amount billable under the regulations.

The Preliminary Audit Report recommended that the General Committee demonstrate it did not receive reimbursements from the Press for campaign travel that were above the maximum amount billable. Absent such evidence, the General Committee was to return, on a pro rata basis, $344,892 to Press representatives and provide documentation to support the refunds.

C. Committee Response to Preliminary Audit Report

The General Committee submitted a response to the Preliminar Audit Report on December 20, 2011, which addressed the finding concerning Prepresimbursement for travel. The General Committee argued that there was a "everbilling because "the Primary Committee and the General Committee us d a reasonable product to predict the allocation of Press reimbursements between the committees" that is "constant with the Commission precedent as well as Generally Accounting Principles. The General Committee also argued that if there was a neally eation of Press reimbursement between the two committees, a payment to the Primary symmittee can correct it.

The General Committee discussed the of its apprnac neess billing. The ract with wift Air for air travel General Committee maintained that beca spanned nine weeks of the Primary and tel week General campaigns, it was necessary to bill based out the sentire cost of the contract. The General Committee also asserted that the Primary Constantee and the Feneral Committee "used a reasonable" centual, poper allocation of press reimbursements between the process to predict The General Committee described in e Prip General Committee and ery Committee some detail the difficulty s the liftling process due to the fact that while they ets we or the combined period, they would not know how to the contact was completed and the actual number of hours apply the fixed costs known. Accel angly, the rimary Committee began biling at the rate of $15,000 partight hour, which would have been the actual contract price per hour had it flown all the burs provide for in the contract. By the time the billing began in the general election priod, the General Committee had to face the fact that the total price of the contract less the stal or flight hours billed to date required that the remaining hours to be flown would have to be valued at a higher rate in order to account for the remaining outstanding balance of the contract.

The General Committee stated the following:

"The Audit Division acknowledges that the Committees' method for predicting the proper allocation of Press reimbursements between the General Committee and the Primary Committee 'reflect[s] the comparative actual use of the aircraft between the Primary and General Committees...' The Audit Division nonetheless advocates a new, never-before-announced technique for calculating a travel segment's hourly rate, and by extension, the proper allocation of Press reimbursements: divide each weekly installment of the

"The Audit Division's method is conveniently simple. But this simplicity is wrought by ignoring important realifles about the Swift Air contract. For one, the Swift Air contract was jointly held by the Primary Committee and the General Committee. It spanned four months, straddling the divide between primary and general-election periods. The Committees and Swift Air intended this exact structure. A four-month contract held by two entities is manifestly different than a two-month contract held by one. The Audit Division, however, wants to now artificially bisect the Swift Air contract without even considering whether the parties would have structured two separate two-month contracts another way. For instance, we known and frequency of the weekly installment payments might have been different, and the costs certainly would have been greater since a key their in the cost of securing a dedicated aircraft is the lease's duration. The As at Division cannot disregard a contract's fundamental elements without it analysis spinning into the realm of fiction."

rift Air ransaction was a seed "The Audit Division also ignores that me $6,384,000 fee in exchange for up to 425.6 ht burs. The payment and the hours were divided into equal weekly installment but a particular week's fixed installment payment walker in exchange for at week's flight hours. Dividing a week's installment property by the week sexual flight hours therefore does not reflect what a laver them's hour, rate and "total actual cost" were. Yet the Audit Division does and thirm, presumably to te calculations sice one us only a week's actual flight simplify the hourless hours rather that wans until the end of the contract to determine how many ich to spread the $6,384,000 fixed fee. Simplicity urs over actual flight It in oferes with actually calculating each travel is indeed attract segment's "total at

"The Commanders' calculation method for a travel segment's hourly rate, on the other hand, was not reconnected and counterfactuals. It recognizes the Swift Air paract as it is, as an in doing so, is more consistent with Commission president and with Jenerally Accepted Accounting Principles. The Primary Combance and the general Committee therefore used a reasonable process to predict in a wentual proper allocation of Press reimbursements between the Committees.

The General Committee then asserted that the calculation method used by the Committees is more consistent with Commission precedent. It defined Commission precedent by citing the methods used by three other campaigns, Dole – Kemp 1996, Kerry – Edwards 2004, and Bush – Cheney 2000, and maintaining that its method coincided closely with those of the campaigns cited. The General Committee contends that the Kerry-Edwards 2004 charter "straddled the primary- and general-election periods," like the Swift Air contract. The General Committee also maintains that its methodology is more consistent with GAAP.

Further, the General Committee states that the Audit staff "relied on non-GAAP cashbasis accounting to estimate the fixed-expense share of each travel segment's total actuai cost of the transportation" and points out, "The Commission has endorsed GAAP's use in presidential campaign audits and cited GAAP to make an adverse audit finding against the Kenry-Edwards Campaign."

The General Committee goes on to state:

"The Primary Committee and the General Committee used GAAP-compliant accrual-basis accounting to calculate the fixed-expense share of each travel segment's "total actual cost of the transportation." Accrual-basis accounting required that the Swift Air contract expenses (and offsets to those expenses in the form of Press reimbursements) were recognized as actual flight hours were used. A portion of the Swift Air contract's fixed cost was assigned to each travel segment using a depreciation technique called the transfer production" method, which is expressed as Cost / Estimated United Depreciation Per Unit Produced (i.e. $6,384,000 / Estimated Flight Hours = Assign Hourly Rate). The "units of production" method was most appropriate her because the actual flight hours, and thus the actual contract lests, were no secured ratably over the individual weeks of the cattract."

n-GAAP cash-basis accounting "By contrast, the Audit Division relies or to estimate the fixed-expense share of each relegiment's "total actual cost kly $336,000 installment as of the transportation. The Audit staff used the the trigger for recording experience (and offsets to the expenses in the form of Press reinbursements). Like all the siss accounts this simplifies the hourly rate calculations since one uses to a week's a sual flight hours rather than waiting until the end of the contract to a many actual flight read the $6,3 4 00 fixed e. But again, like all cashhours over which s not offer a fully accurate picture of the transaction basis accounting, this , this takes not offer a ulify accurate picture of the transcreek's its allment pays ent was not paid to Swift Air in here because exchange for the week' installment of ght hours."

The General Committee such arized and on on GAAP by stating, "...the calculation method used by the party Committee and the General Committee is more consistent with GAP. The two committees therefore used a reasonable process to predict the eventual proper allocation of Press combursements between the Committees."

In the conclusion of its response, the General Committee offered its rationale in opposing the Audit staff's distinct a payment to the Primary Committee to correct the imbalance would continue an impermissible use of public funding resulting in a non-qualified campaign expense subject to repayment. The General Committee makes four arguments.

- 1. Funds received under circumstances outside Part 9005 (concerning the general election public grant), such as Press reimbursements, are not similarly restricted and therefore their use is not restricted.
- 2. Because the primary campaign is long over, the General Committee will not actually incur any primary-related expenses. The transfer is simply to correct what the Audit iDivision views as the original "misdeposit" (sic) of Press reimbursaments.

- 3. The transfer would not be a "non-qualified expense" because in the past, the Commission has repeatedly permitted transfers from publicly funded general-election committees to their affiliated primary-election committees to correct misallocation and similar issues.
- 4. Finally, a General-to-Primary Committee transfer should not be prevented under the Audit Division's "non-qualified expense" rationale because the only reason for this misallocation issue is the Commission's failure to provide guidance on how to prospectively calculate the fixed-cost portion of a particular travel segment's "total actual cost of ... transportation." The Primary Committee and the General Committee had no notice that they were not using the Commission's preferred calculation method.

The Audit staff notes that the General Committee's response to the Preliminary Audit Report concedes that an imbalance existed between the reinburse cents it sought from the Press during the primary portion of the Swift Air stantact and the sought during the period attributable to general portion. The imbalance resolted from the timary Committee billing the Press for reimbursements at a lower hourly rate that actual cost would have suggested during the primary period. The Audit staff maintains sat the amount represented by what the General Committee alls at "imbalance" actually represents the amount the General Committee overclass of the traveling Press during the general election period.

The Audit staff concedes that the General Constitution's explain non of the origin of the imbalance is accurate. It explains how the Primary committee billed significantly less in the primary period, and the General Committee billed as higher rate in the general period; this is essentially the perham. The General Committee over billed the Press during the general general general of the period of the actual reimbursable cost incurred for transportation.

The General Science described the contract as a "fixed $6,384,000 fee in exchange for up to 47.6 flight hour. The antion of the contract was 19 weeks with nine weeks falling to the primary plant and the est ten weeks in the general period. There were additional terms in the contract. The General Committee could fly up to 22.4 hours of flight time proveek. Any additional hours flown would be bifled at $15,000 per hour. Should the General Committee use the entire allotment of 22.4 hours in a given week, it would be entitled blraw in any hours not used in a successive week. This issue never arose because neither ampaign ever exceeded the weekly allotment of 22.4 hours.

The General Committee objected to the Audit staff's calculation of fixed costs based only on the portion of the contract that applied solely to the general election period. The Audit staff notes that the only portion of the Swift Air contract for which the General Committee was responsible was the final ten weeks. The General Committee seemed to have understood that it was liable for the portion of the contract beginning in the contract's tenth week because that is how the contract obligation was paid. The Primary Committee was not permitted to pay for any of the contract beyond its obligation because, in so doing, the Primary Committee would have made a contribution to the General Committee. This would not have helped the General Committee since it was limited to the federal grant. The Audit staff necessarily focused on the fixed cost incurred and paid during the general election period.

The General Committee also objected to the Audit staff calculation of weekly fixed costs based on payments each week divided by the hours flown that week. The General Committee contention that "the payment and the hours were divided into equal weekly installments, but a particular week's fixed installment payment was not in exchange for that week's flight hours" does not square with the facts. Swift Air did intend that it be paid weekly for services provided under the contract, and it limited the services to be provided on a weekly basis to a maximum of 22.4 of flight hours. Swift Air charged the General Committee weekly for its services and monitored total use weekly to determine whether it had provided services beyond the number of hours provided in the contract. As a consequence, the Audit staff believes that its method of the ding the fixed payment by the number of hours fixen provides a reasonable calculates of fixed weekly costs. Moreover, this method will associate the correct weekly courly costs based on the campaign's use each week.

The General Committee makes a case for its metodology being consister with the past and Kery-Edwards 200 campaigns of Dole-Kemp 1996, Bush-Cheney 20 The Audit staff notes that Dole-Kemp 1996 had a distinct conthe general election and is not comparable to the problems of a contract spanning two factions as laid out by the General Committee. The audit of Busicheney 2000 indicates that this committee did not materially overcharge the Press for the related trave Emally, the General Committee cited the audit of Kerry-Edwards 24 which found that the general marned by the primary campaign had received bankable flight hours the man Commission determined that the general campaign should for these flight hours. The reimbursement was required campaign. In this instance reimburse the primary campas, for these flight hours. The reimbursement was require to avoid a prohibite to attribute from the primary campaign to the general campaign. Further, the Audit staff tes the issue is not of methodology but of results. Committees are limited in y seek as reimbursement for travel establiar administrative costs of ten percent of the total, Once they may receive rein no more than 110 percent of actual costs. The semen General immediate rec d reimber ements in total that exceeded 110 percent.

The General election mmittee objected to the Audit staff calculations based on the period of the contract that consided with the general election. It maintained that by using these calculations, the Audit staff is resorting to (non-GAAP) cash-basis accounting. As outlined above, the reast of the review was necessarily the general election period. Within the general election period, the Audit staff matched, on a weekly basis, the services received with the contract cost paid. In summary, the amount the Press was overcharged is the difference between the maximum amount the Audit staff calculated as appropriately billable and the reimbursements actually received in the general election period.

The audit of Kerry-Edwards 2004 found no reaterial non-compliance with press billing. Apart from the fact that the Kerry-Edwards 2004 charter contract spanned the primary and general election, there is little similarity between the two campaigns. The repayment of banked hours was unrelated to press billing in Kerry-Edwards 2004. Indeed, Kerry-Edwards 2004 recognized that the banked hours were appropriately an asset of the primary campaign and had calculated a repayment equal to 99 percent of the amount identified in the audit; this amount eventually was repaid.

The General Committee made arguments for allowing a transfer to the Primary Committee to correct the imbalance. The Audit staff acknowledges that transfers were sometimes permitted between the primary and general committees in Presidential campaigns when it has been shown in the course of an audit that funds or obligations belonging to a primary or general committee were in the possession of the other. This is not the case in this instance.

The General Committee believes that the Commission should find that the Press reimbursements were calculated correctly, resulting in no violation of the Act, and that the General Committee may terminate immediately.

In the final analysis, the focus of the audit is the General committee. As such, the Audit staff maintains that the General Committee received Plass reimburs trants during the general election campaign period, which in the age egate exceeded the aximum allowed, and that the General Committee should eturn, on a pro rata basis 1344,892 to Press representatives and provide documentation, support the refunds. Discorgement to the U.S. Treasury, however, may be acceptable if the Central Committee is unable to reconstruct the precise amounts owed to Press representatives.

Part V Finding and Decommendation for the Compliance Fund

Failure to Fig. 48-Hear Notices

Summer

The Complete Fund fails to file 48-hour notices for 169 contributions totaling $240,700 that are received prior to the general election. In response to the Preliminary Audit Report, this compliance Fund explained that it had experienced a one-time data-management error which outside vendor relating to the 48-hour notice requirement. The Compliance Fund has taken measures to ensure that this unintentional oversight was corrected. The Compliance Fund believes that the Commission should find there was no violation of the 48-hour notice requirement and that the Compliance Fund should be able to terminate immediately

Legal Standard

48-Hour Natification of Contributions. An authorized committee of a candidate must file special notices regarding contributions of $1,000 or more received less than 20 days but more than 48 hours before any election in which the candidate is running. This rule applies to all types of contributions to any authorized committee of the candidate. 11 CFR §104.5(f).

Facts and Analysis

A. Facts

The general election was held on November 4, 2008. Contributions of $1,000 or more received by the Compliance Fund between October 16, 2008, and November 1, 2008, required the filing of 48-hour notices (FEC Form 6 – 48-Hour Notice of Contributions/ Loans Received). The Audit staff isolated 589 contributions, totaling $871,260, which required the filing of these 48-hour notices. A review of these records identified 169 contributions, totaling $240,700, for which the Compliance Fund failed to file the 48-hour notices.

C. Committee Response to the Preliminary Audit Report

In response to the Preliminary Audit Report, the Compliance Fund reiterated the arguments mentioned above concerning the filing of 48-hour notices. Specifically, the Compliance Fund maintained that the Commission incorrectly identified contributions that were redesignated during the 48-hour notice reporting period or refunded immediately following receipt. For other contributions, the Compliance Fund stated that it did not follow the normal practice of filing 48-hour notices due to data-management errors by its outside vendor. Furthermore, the Compliance Fund again stated that the funds received shortly before the 2008 general election still have not been spent for any purpose, and it reiterated its belief that 48-hour notices are intended to disclose any last-minute contributions that can be used for campaign-related activities and not for donations to the legal and accounting activities of the Compliance and

The Audit staff acknowledges that the majority of 48-hour case is not filed were the result of a data management error as indicated by the Corpliance and. It also noted, however, that none of the contributions it had identified were redesignated contributions. Also, the contributions that the Compliance Fund identified in its response to the Preliminary Audit Report, at footnote 56, actually were received during the 18-hour notice period but refunded after the notice period after Normber 1, 2008). As such, these contributions required a 48-hour notice.

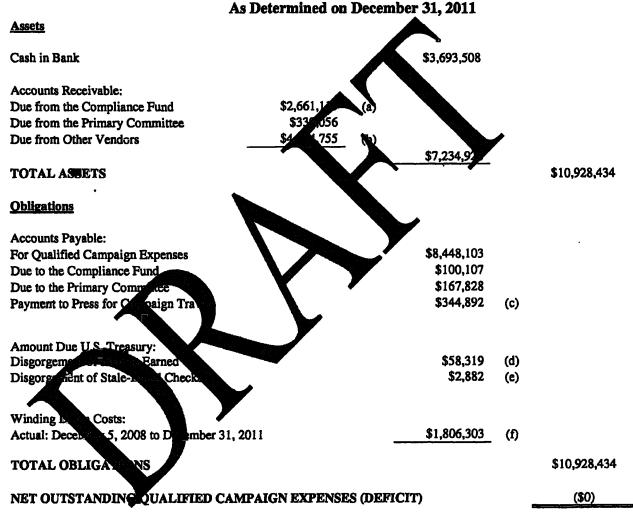

Part VI Finding and Recommendation for the Joint Fundaming Committees

Based upon the limited semina on of the report, and statements filed and the records presented by the seven jobs of normal trees, the Audit staff discovered no material national ce.

⁶ The Compliance Fund's response to the Preliminary Audit Report mistakenly includes the example, at footnote 55, of a redesignated contribution from Eileen Kamerick on 10/23/08. This contribution, totaling $1,500, was reported as a memo entry redesignation from the primary on the Compliance Fund's Post-General 2008 disclosure report and not included in the Audit staff's review of 48-hour notices. A subsequent credit card contribution made on the committee's website from Eileen Kamerick totaling $1,000 on 10/29/08 was also reported on the Compliance Fund's Post-General 2008 disclosure report and was included in this review.
